ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

This invention relates to a method for carrying out, using control means capable of gathering operating information of one or more construction machines to be rented to one or more renters, a service to renters according to the operating information, wherein the control means calculates the point number for service for giving back the profit to the renters on the basis of an evaluation standard preset with respect to the construction machines from the operating information, and totals the point number calculated every renter to present it.